“I photograph presence, not the pose.” — grn.35

Light, material, patience.

grn.35 is a visual journal written by light and texture. My work moves between portrait and editorial series — where material (silk, lace, skin, gold) meets natural light and a very quiet way of looking.

I work exclusively on film — 35mm and medium format. Each one offers a different rhythm: one is faster and closer, the other slower, with a longer breath. Warm skin tones, soft shadows, small imperfections.

I photograph presence rather than pose. The name — grn.35 — is a nod to a roll of 35mm film, and to the kind of patience film demands.

Pink satin, white column.
